Mary Blamed It on Wrong Copper

"That 'Irish Tom' has a grudge against me," Mary Ritchey told Burgess Evans in police court this morning. "I wasn't drunk at all, but he pulled me in just for spite."

Mary was arrested last evening near the Y. M. C. A. building and before the officers got her to the police station quite a crowd had gathered. Mary, when intoxicated, isn't a bit particular about the language she uses, and until late last night she kept up both an of nouns about the lockup. The record disclosed the fact that Officer James Francis and P. M. Rulli made the arrest, that Officer McDonald was at home at the time, and therefore, that Mary must have been pretty well tanked. She was given 18 hours by the Burgess.

Hazlett Sewer is Still Undecided

The Sewer Committee of Town Council met last night and discussed at length the matter at issue between the borough and W. A. Hazlett regarding a private sewer on Vine street. W. J. Heeks wishes to tap this sewer but Hazlett objects unless he is remunerated by someone. When the sewer was laid by Hazlett, that portion of the borough was then in the township. Hazlett was given verbal permission by the late State Street engineer to tap the borough sewer. It would have been impossible at the time for Town Council to have officially approved the agreement. It is claimed by the Democratic members in Council, Hazlett now wants the borough to take the sewer off his hands. The Sewer Committee was not certain of its authority and no definite conclusion was reached. The committee also discussed the work being done on Clinton avenue by Carpenter D. T. Hirshman, which is now under way. This sewer will connect the upper Main street pipe with a dead end that runs up Clinton Avenue and is expected to prevent a further flooding of the street when heavy rains fall.

THE PRIMARY LAW AND THE PRIMARY CANDIDATES.

The primary candidates are all announced and their names are a legend. There is no objection to the number. It is the right of any citizen to seek office, and there are times when it is civic duty, although these times it must be admitted are rather rare. The ordinary candidate is not wholly without civic righteousness, but he is seldom without a seizable appetite for the salary attached; in fact, it is sometimes suspected that he seeks to serve himself first and the people quite incidentally afterwards.

Nevertheless it is but fair to state that some very excellent men are offering themselves as candidates at this primary, and that it is within the province and the power of the people to select good men for the numerous county, city, borough and township offices; but these candidates should be selected fairly and voted for honestly.

The Uniform Primary law has been much abused. Under its provisions candidates of one party have sought and sometimes succeeded, strange as it may seem, in getting places on the opposition ticket. This is morally wrong but legally possible. The law says:

The names of the candidates shall be printed upon the official ballot of a designated party upon the filing of petitions, signed by qualified electors of the party, and the election in which the nomination or election is to be made, setting forth that the signers thereof are members of the party designated.

It will be noted that the signers must certify that they are members of the party, but it is not required that they certify that the candidate is a member of the party, and herein lies the weakness if not the wickedness of the law. A few recreant and venal members of a party have the power to place an opposition candidate upon the primary ballot of their party. The danger of this trickery, however, is minimized by the fact that the votes cast for such a candidate must be cast within the party upon whose ticket his name appears, and it is seldom possible to corrupt the whole party or to gain the honest consent of a majority of its members to the adoption as their party candidate of a member of the opposition political faith.

Perhaps the greatest weakness of the Uniform Primary law lies in the fact that it authorizes the election board to give to the voter the primary ballot for which he asks, unless his right to the same is challenged, in which case he must certify under oath that he voted that particular political ticket at the previous election.

It has been found in practice that through party management deals, the members of one party have voted at the primaries of another in the absence of challenges in such a wholesale manner as to rob the members of the latter party of their right to make their own choice.

As a rule it is when a candidate to stick to his own party and his own ticket. The presence of his name on a variety of ballots is not always an evidence of popularity; on the contrary, it is usually proof of the fact that he is a double-dealing traitor and a deeply dyed traitor.

The highly esteemed but very critical Uniontown Herald editorially admits making an "inadvertent" statement concerning the Connellsville Coke Producers' Association. It might concur in the statement, but it is not known if the inadvertent statement it is making concerning the primary politics of the county.

The drouth in Maine has been broken and the Democrats are sitting up and taking notice.

BISHOP WILSON ARRIVES HOME.

Speculation Among Methodists Will Now Be Set at Rest

IN THE PITTSBURG CONFERENCE

Lee Sherman of Scottsdale is Able to Be Cut After Being Impaled on Iron Bar—P. J. O'Connor's Condition, Birds Lose Their Homes.

SCOTTDALE, Sept. 12.—Of interest to members of the Methodist Episcopal denomination in this section is the announcement of the return to this country of Bishop Luther B. Wilson. Bishop Wilson, who was appointed to hold the Pittsburgh conference in Wilkinsburg on October 4, went to Africa last December and while there contracted a severe case of African fever. Bishop D. H. Moore was filling his place during his absence and it was expected that he would hold the Pittsburgh conference. The New York Christian Advocate stated this week that Bishop Wilson is in his usual vigorous health and expects to meet the district superintendents at an early date, and his expectation is to make full conference assignments according to the published plan. His address is the same as before going to Africa, 1026 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

The Bishop arrived on the steamship California, accompanied by his wife and daughter and the Misses Paton of Chattanooga, Tenn. The report of his return and health puts to rest a good deal of speculation among the Methodists of the Pittsburgh conference in relation to what Bishop would preside over the deliberations of the conference. Bishop Wilson is the Secretary of the Board of Bishops and one of the ablest men in the church. He has never presided over the Pittsburgh conference.

Imprisoned on a Bar.

Lee Sherman, an employee in the machine shop of the U. S. Cast Iron Pipe & Foundry Company, is able to be about after a peculiar and painful accident. While at work he climbed on a casting to measure it and a polished iron bar which was on top slipped down and stood beside the casting. As Mr. Sherman slid down from the casting his trousers caught on the pointed end of the bar, causing the bar to penetrate the cloth and sink deep into Mr. Sherman's thigh near the groin, and suspending him on the bar. He lost his hold on the casting and fell to the ground, and the bar had to be pulled from the flesh. About four years ago while adjusting a crane on another bar was thrown down from the crane and stuck upward in the ground. Mr. Sherman did not see the bar and in jumping from the last rung on the ladder on the crane, he alighted on the bar, which impaled him on one hip, the bar being driven into the thigh bone. Another man had to exert a great deal of strength to pull the bar from this wound. Mr. Sherman has had plenty of bad luck in this line.

Were at Hospital.

Misses Annie and Margaret O'Connor were at the Mercy hospital, Pittsburgh, on Sunday, seeing their father, P. J. O'Connor, who had been operated on several days before. The operation was a dangerous one and the patient's condition was much worse than was at first believed. He suffered greatly, but his condition now gives encouragement. Mrs. O'Connor who had been with her husband much of the time, accompanied their daughters home.

On Second avenue, lot 36129, Scottsdale. Five rooms, slate roof, heating gas and water, cemented cellar, all first class condition. A real bargain at $1,550. Inquiries of the owner, L. M. Boyd, 13 Grant street, Scottsdale.

Visited His Sister.

R. N. Croft, an employee in the post office at Pittsburgh, has been visiting his sister, Mrs. J. R. Dewalt, and family in Everson for a few days.

They Lost Their Homes.

Following an honest day's toll several hundred birds arrived home last evening about the time the last night about the time the whistlers were blowing and were amazed at finding that they were homeless. That is the birds were homeless that formerly resided at the corner of Pittsburgh and Chestnut streets. Those birds had apartments in the three immense poplar trees in front of C. Overholt's home. The birds had a city of about the third class and held their residence there all summer, bringing up large families. When they arrived home last evening they found that some man, with a large saw had climbed all over the poplar trees, and cut away hundreds of their homes, leaving nothing but the trunks and a

Healthful Hints

A Refreshing Drink For Fever Patients

To half a glass of any good syrup left from cascading, add a few drops of sarsaparilla, one-half a tablespoonful of Dr. D's pure malt extract and a few lumps of ice. Fill up the glass with plain cold water. This may be made more aromatic by adding the yolks of a few eggs and shaking the whole well.

This drink is very highly recommended by Dr. Thomas Love of Atlanta, Ga., who says it is unequalled for fever patients.

You Are Next Door to Paris

Paris and Paris Fashions Are Not 3,500 Miles Away. The Suits, Dresses and Millinery That Paris Inspires Are at Your Very Door Through the Medium of Horne's in Pittsburgh.

NE is prone to think of Paris fashions as being for the comparative few who have the time and opportunity to visit Paris itself.

There may have been a time when that was true, but that has long since been done away with.

The Joseph Horne Company of Pittsburgh maintains an extensive bureau at 21 Rue d'Hauteville, Paris. We also have a special correspondent whose business it is to visit the ateliers of Paris, and who, each week, sends us a letter and pictures descriptive of the very newest things that the new-loving Parisiennes wear. She visits the salons of Drecol, Paquin, Callot, Louise, Maria Guy and the others whose names are household words with the fashionable world. So we get direct and authentic information of the newest fabrics, the newest trimmings, the newest style developments in suits, dresses and millinery.

Particularly in millinery, much comes direct from the Paris artists themselves. In other instances, our information is converted in New York or in our own work rooms into faithful duplicates of the Paris styles.

The above illustration is an exact copy of a tailored street hat suitable for mid-season wear. It is typical of a group of hats we have had made from Paris models. By using American materials and American workmanship, we are able to sell these tailored hats, of which this is one sample, at $5.00, $6.00, $6.75, $7.50, $8.75, $10.00, $12.50

NY clever woman knows that given a model she can trim a hat or make a blouse, and obtain effective results. That is what we are doing all the time.

This enables us to offer Paris styles—styles with all the chic, daintiness, delicacy and refinement of the originals—at prices far much less than the originals would cost.

So, you will see what a simple matter it is for you to step on a car or a train and come to Horne's, where your scope is tremendous. You will not be limited to one or two or three or four styles, but you will have dozens from which to choose, be it in suits, dresses or millinery.

From what we have said about Paris, do not allow yourself to gain the impression of high prices. We have a great many lovely creations, the prices of which are hundreds of dollars, but the great bulk and volume of our business is the medium-priced apparel.

We make a great specialty of women's tailored suits at $25.00. Other suits $15.00 to $250.00.

Millinery as inexpensive as you wish. Trimmed hats for $5.00, up to $110.00.

HER HAIR GREW.

That's Why a Thankful Woman Recommends Parisian Sage.

A. A. Clarke will sell you a fifty cent bottle of PARISIAN SAGE and guarantees it to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp, or money back. It's a delightful balm drenching that makes hair lustrous and flourishing.

"In the spring I was recovering from a severe case of crystolipol, which left me virtually bald on the front of my head and next to my ears. The hair kept coming out rapidly and nothing I tried stopped my falling entirely bald. SAGE. This tonic made my hair start to grow in and, in fact, grow so a good fair amount of hair, and it has entirely stopped my hair falling out.

NEVER ANY INDIGESTION, DYSPEPSIA OR SICK, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH.

A Little Diapepsin Will Make
You Feel Fine in Five Minutes.

Take your sou, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a faint case of Paine's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Tramule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become infected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting.

nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is sickly and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating while you wait without fear of dis comfort or misery:

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Field Hospital, Sixth Corps.

My head ached so abominably when I first opened my eyes that I was compelled to close them again, merely realizing dimly that I looked up at something white above me, which appeared to sway as though blown gently by the wind. My groping hand, the only one I appeared able to move, told me I was lying upon a camp-bed, with soft sheets about me, and that my head rested upon a pillow. Then I passed once more into unconsciousness, but this time it was saloop.

When I once more awakened the throbbing pain had largely left my hot temples, and I saw that the swaying white canopy composed the roof of a large tent, upon which the golden sunlight now lay in checkered masses, telling me the canoes had been erected among trees. A faint moan caused me to move my head slightly on the gratefully soft pillow, and I could perceive a long row of beds, exactly similar to the one I occupied, each apparently filled, stretching away toward an opening that looked forth into the open air. A man was moving slowly down the narrow aisle toward me, stopping here and there to bend over some sufferer with medicine or a cheery word. He wore a short white jacket, and was without a cap, his head of heavy red hair a most conspicuous object. As he approached I endeavored to speak, but for the moment my throat refused response to the effort. Then I managed to ask feebly: "Where am I?"

The blue eyes in the freckled, boyish face danced good-humoredly, and he laid a big red hand gently upon my forehead.

"Field hospital, Sixth Corps," he said, with a strong Hibernian accent. "As' how de ye like it, John?"

"Better than some others I've seen," I managed to articulate faintly. "Who won?"

"Divil a wan of us knows," he admitted frankly, "but your fellows did the retributin'."

It was an old, old story to all of us by that time, and I closed my eyes wearily, content to ask no more.

I have no way of knowing how long I rested there motionless, although awake, my eyes closed to keep out the painful glare, my sad thoughts buried with memory of those men whom I had seen reel and fall upon the stricken field we had battled so vainly to save. Once I wondered, with sudden start of fear, if I had lost a limb, if it was to be crippled for life, the one thing I dreading above all else. Feeling feebly beneath my bed-clothing I tested, as best I could, each limb. All were apparently intact, although my left arm seemed useless and devoid of feeling, broken no doubt, and I heaved a sigh of genuine relief. Then I became partially aroused to my surroundings by a voice speaking from the cot next mine.

"You lazy Irish scamp!" it cried petulantly, "that beef stew was to have been given me an hour ago."

"Sure, sir," was the soothing reply, "it wasn't to be given yer honor till two o'clock."

"Well, it's all of three now."

"Want-thirty, on me sowl, sir."

That first voice sounded oddly familiar, and I turned my face that way, but was unable to perceive the speaker.

"Is that Lieutenant Caton?" I asked doubtfully.

"Most assuredly it is," quickly.

"And who are you?"

"Captain Wayne, of the Confederate Army."

"Oh, Wayne? Glad you spoke, but extremely sorry to have you here. Lady hurt?"

"Not seriously, I think. No limbs missing, anyhow, but exceedingly weak. Where did they get you?"

"In the side, a musket ball, but extricated. I would be all right if that lazy Irish scamp would only give me half enough to eat. By the way, Wayne, of course I never got the straight of it, for there are half-dozen stories about the affair flying around, and those most interested will not talk, but one of your special friends, and to my notion a most charming young woman, will be here to see me sometime this afternoon. She will be delighted to meet you again, I'm sure."

"Captain Wayne!" she cried.

"One of my friends?" I questioned incredulously, yet instantly thinking of Edith Brennan. "A young woman?"

"Sure; at least she has confessed enough to me regarding that night's work to make me strongly suspicious that Captain Wayne, of the Confederate Army, and Colonel Curran, late of Major-General Halleck's staff, are one and the same person. A mighty neat trick, by Jove, and it would have done you good to see Sheridan's face when they told him. But about the young lady—she claims great friendship with the gallant Colonel of light artillery and her description of his appearance at the ball is assuredly a masterpiece of romantic fiction. Come, Captain, surely you are not the kind of man to forget a pretty face like that? I can assure you, you made a deep impression. There are times when I am almost jealous of you."

"But," I protested, my heart beating rapidly, "I met several that evening, and you have mentioned no name."

"Well, to me it chances there is but one worthy of mention," he said earnestly, "and that one is Celia Minor."

"Miss Minor!" I felt a strange sense of disappointment. "Does she come alone?"

"Most certainly; do you suppose she would expose me in my present weak state to the fascinations of any one else?"

"Oh, so the wind lies in that quarter, does it, old fellow? I congratulate you, I'm sure."

My recollection of Miss Minor was certainly a most pleasant one, and I recalled to memory the attractively picture of her glossy black hair and flashing brown eyes, yet I felt exceedingly small interest in again meeting her. Indeed I was asleep when she finally entered, and it was the sound of Caton's voice that aroused me and made me conscious of the presence of others.

"To be Continued."

"Captain Wayne, of the Confederate Army."

"Oh, Wayne? Glad you spoke, but

"The Blue Ribbon Girls." Coming to the Soisson Theatre Friday, Sept. 13, is "The Blue Ribbon Girls," a combination of burlesque talent which has gained the reputation of being the most complete organization of its kind traveling this season. It is composed of some 35 selected players, including among whom are a chorus of 20 elite and vivacious girls whose physical charms are enhanced by gorgeous costumes showing their many charms to the best possible advantage. Moreover these young women are endowed with talent, for they can sing, dance and act—qualities which are rarely visible to the naked eye in the average burlesque show. Many of them are engaged after they had completed a summer's engagement in the musical productions in New York and are beyond the ordinary in the matter of good looks and voices and some are only making their first trip to the country. The management lays stress to the fact that the burlesques entitled "Girls of the Boulevard" and "Madame Sherry," the latter a satire on "Madame Sherry," are just little better than the usual run of pieces with burlesque shows in the matter of catchy music and comic situations.

Aviator Fowler
Ready for Flight

United Press Telegram.
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 11.—Aviator Fowler was scheduled to start at 11 o'clock today from the Park stadium in the first attempt ever made to fly from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast. He planned to arrive at Sacramento at 1 o'clock P. M. and at Reno at 6 o'clock this evening and to finally land in New York October 6.

In his flight Fowler will be confronted with greater difficulties than any other aviator ever encountered in America. If he gets no further than Nevada, he will have accomplished a remarkablefeat, that of crossing the Sierra Nevada mountain, and will be obliged to fly at least 5,000 feet high over a mountainous country so thickly wooded as to make landing impossible. Once over these mountains, Fowler will have clear sailing into Reno, leaving Reno, however, he will be forced to cross the deserts of Nevada.

THIS ANNOUNCEMENT OF

A Sale of Fall Silks
By the Wright-Metzler Co.

Will bring to mind the sales of silk that frequently occurred during the Spring season. A most-remembered fact in the minds of the people will be the highly profitable returns that all purchasers received.

Every Woman is Interested in the New Silks for Fall

Like homing pigeons, the new silks have been flocking to Wright-Metzler's for some weeks past, and now the collection of the new styles is of ample size that warrants our inviting you to see and share. Wright-Metzler's for style, for quality, for variety—ask any Connellsburg woman who knows.

And the Last Silks to arrive--1,000 Yards Strong--will be offered for sale Wednesday Morning at a saving of 15c to 40c on the Yard.

No a bit of reason for being in doubt as to which silk, or silks, to get for the Fall and Winter gown. Just come to this sale—and, to offset any doubt arising from the delightful perplexity as to which group to choose from—where all the silks are beautiful—this lowered price may aid your selection.

60c Yard for 75c to $1.00 Silks.

Satin Messaline A Favorite Silk for Fall.

Acting on information of assured reliability, we bought heavily—lavishly, if you will—of the silks highest in fashion's favor: Messaline, taffeta and moire. 3,500 yards—1,000 yards of which remains here—the rest going to two other stores, and you will have widest choice of qualities and variety at the lowest prices.

1,000 yards--26 inches wide--Messaline, taffeta and Moire Silks with navy, brown, tan, rose, copenhagen, green and black grounds upon which are stripes, checks and figures in the most effective designs.

On sale Wednesday at 60c yard instead of 75c and $1.00 yard.

Exquisite New Laces

The lace magicians have been busy and an hour in the lace section will reveal rare new beauty. Look at the satiny padded effects of the Japanese laces, or the Virchey laces with the design skillfully outlined in silk threads. Notice the Marquis lace, the dainty, flowered effects climbing trellis-like the shadowy, mystery meshes, and the beautiful, gossamer Chantilly laces, in widths the tiniest to enormous proportions. And these barely hint at the skill and cunning the designers used in the new laces—for this is a great lace season.

Smart Fall Suitings

Beautiful dress fabrics and novelties—from foreign and domestic centers. They were all critically chosen to give Connellsburg women the best selected from the best, to give them the new fabrics fashionable this season. Well night endless variety of suitings of the best weaving skill of sturdy Scotland, tailor-famous England, through Germany and inspired France. As great variety from the finest maker in all America—the Jamestown worsted mills. Rough goods are in highest favor for suitings—double-faced Scotch fabrics for cloakings and the fine spun for gowns. Welcome—any time.
